DEATH OBJECTIVE IS SOUGHT BY MAN WHO IS WOUNDED

Himes Wants To Die After Firing Gun To End Life

VICTIM FIGHTS ON TREATMENT

Despondent Over The Loss Of Loved Ones Thought Cause

BIRMINGHAM, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Blinded by a bullet that severed optic nerves and lodged in the forehead, T. A. Himes, 50-year-old insurance agent, today was fighting a unique battle from his bed at Woodlawn Infirmary. His objective is death.

Himes was found in his bedroom Friday, his face buried in a pool of blood, silently, though consciously waiting for death. He fought attempts of a physician to treat the wound and later resisted efforts to carry him to the hospital. He finally submitted when police threatened force.

He was rushed to the infirmary where an anesthetic was administered before treatment. His condition, weakened by the loss of blood and his resistance of medical aid, made an operation impossible and hopeless. (The bullet remains buried between the eyes and just at the back of the forehead.)

It was fired through the left temple. With his opposition to treatment death is only a matter of hours.

A series of misfortunes that first robbed him of his wife and then of his mother, leaving him with two young daughters is blamed for the act. He has displayed periods of despondency during recent months, according to his housekeeper, Mrs. Weir.

Mrs. Weir, with two daughters, Margaret 12 and Elizabeth 10, found him shortly after noon Friday. They were returning from a shopping trip to town. Their home is at 201 N. 68th street.

RAILROADS GRANT WAGE INCREASE

$3,000,000 Annually Is Increase To The 100,000 Shopmen

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Eleven railroads operating out of Chicago have granted wage increases that will add $3,000,000 annually to the pay of about 100,000 shopmen.

The advances range from one to three cents an hour, in most cases an hourly increase of two cents, and either are already in effect or will be by the end of the calendar year.

The move was negotiated through local employees' associations, but railway officials said that the first major and general increases since those incident to the strike of shop workers in 1922 were voluntarily granted and not forced by demand. There have been advances on some of the roads since 1922 but of smaller proportion.

TUBERCULOSIS TO BE DISCUSSED BY 'CONTROL' LEADER

Graham Will Deliver Three Addresses In County

LARGE CROWDS ARE EXPECTED

Prevention Feature Will Be Stressed By The Visitor

J. M. Graham, head of the tuberculosis control bureau, will deliver a series of addresses in Morgan county next week in an effort to make plain to the public, especially the younger people, the methods of preventing the spread of the white plague.

Mr. Graham will open his campaign Monday evening, when he will address the Parent-Teachers' Association and the public in the Hartselle city hall.

On Tuesday morning he will speak at 10:30 o'clock in the auditorium of the Decatur High school to the students of that institution. At one o'clock he will address the students of Morgan County High school in the auditorium of that building in Hartselle.

With care and the exercising of the various health methods, it is declared that tuberculosis could be eliminated entirely from America within a comparatively few years.

Mr. Graham has given much study to his subject and it is believed that his addresses will be heard by large audiences.

NO REASON IS SEEN IN DOUBLE MURDER

Former Grid Star Is Slayer Of Wife And Then Self

MATTATOSETT, Mass., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Specific reasons were being sought today for the killing of Mrs. J. E. Norton Shaw by her husband, an attorney, formerly a Harvard football star. After shooting her he killed himself.

Shaw was to have figured in a probate court hearing next Monday upon objections of the town, Acushnet, to the allowance of his account as executor of the will of George T. Russell, who made the town chief beneficiary of a will that disposed of $105,000.

Shaw returned home yesterday afternoon, changed his clothes and obtained a shotgun with which he told his housekeeper he was going to kill a rat.

Later the attorney cried to the housekeeper he had shot his wife and directed her to call a physician. While she was at the telephone Shaw ended his own life.

MRS. HALL TAKES WITNESS STAND IN OWN BEHALF

Defendant Is Calm As She Answers The Questions

WEARS SIMPLE DRESS OF BLACK

South Carolina Her Native State She Tells Jurors

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 28.—(AP)—Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall went to the witness stand in the Hall-Mills trial at two p.m.

Dressed in black, as she has been since the trial began, Mrs. Hall walked to the witness stand in the same calm manner that has marked her conduct in the courtroom since the trial began almost four weeks ago.

Her testimony was expected to bring the defense's case to a close.

Mrs. Hall was the last of the three defendants to testify.

"Where were you born?" asked Robert H. McCarter, of defense counsel, as the first question in the direct examination.

"In South Carolina in 1874," answered Mrs. Hall.

She spoke in a low, calm voice, as the direct examination was started.

Spectators in the courtroom leaned eagerly forward to catch every word she said.

Mr. McCarter showed her the family Bible, containing the birth records of Mrs. Hall and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens. The records of the sisters and brothers' baptisms were written in the Bible by her mother, Mrs. Hall said.

These records had been introduced earlier.

FARMER IS NOT IN POOR FINANCE

Banker Says Yelps Are "Bure Bunk," In Interview

CINCINNATI, Nov. 27.—(INS)—Pure bunk!

That, in the opinion of Samuel L. McCune, Cleveland, president of the Ohio-Pennsylvania Joint Stock Land Bank, is all there is to the "deplorable situation" of the American farmer, as pictured in dark painting during the past few years.

Pointing out that although agricultural interests have gone through a trying period, McCune explained to a group of members of the Investment Bankers' Association of America that the "real trouble could be traced to "one-crop" farming, and "fictitious inflation" and values.

"Agriculture is not in a perilous situation," he declared. "For while farm population is in reality on the decrease, the total production on farms shows a remarkable annual increase."

"Why worry about this much-talked-of 'drift of our farm population to the cities'?" he asked "one good farmer, with modern implements can now do the work it required 12 men to perform 15 years ago."

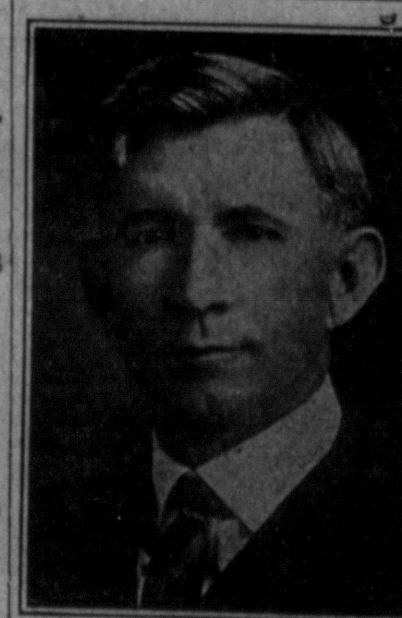

"As a class, farmers are the best business risks in the nation; they can come nearer being bankrupt and still work out their obligations better than any other class," he concluded.

JURY BARRED AS LAWYERS CLASH IN A HEATED ROW

Defense Efforts To Introduce Letters A Failure

SLAYERS NAMES ARE DEMANDED

State Urges Prober To Lay His Cards On The Table

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 27.—(AP)—A free-for-all argument between attorneys in the all-Mills case occurred today, while Timothy N. Pfeiffer, member of defense counsel, was on the stand as a witness for the defense.

The debate grew so intense at one phase that the jury was sent from the room.

The argument began when defense tried to introduce letters to show that the defendants, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers Henry and William Stevens had made efforts to solve the mystery of the murder of Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, for which they are on trial.

The letters were sent State officers.

After Senator Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor, had accused Senator Clarence E. Case, member of the defense council, of making a "stump speech" and defense had retorted that it was compelled to "defend itself against the calumnies of Senator Simpson," Justice Parker restored order, but excluded the letters.

Pfeiffer continued his testimony between clashes that followed the first general outbreak of invectives and accusations.

At one time, with Felix Di Martini, private detective employed by defense on the stand, Senator Simpson demanded the names which the witness, after investigation, that cost the defendants more than $5,000 had "burned up" as the real murderers.

After another storm of argument had cleared, defense counsel said it would not name anyone suspected by themselves or by Di Martini unless commanded to do so by the court.

Former Senator William E. Florence, New Brunswick attorney, who said he had settled two estates for the Stevens family, testified he was called to the Hall home the day before the bodies were found and told of notifying New Brunswick police that Dr. Hall was missing. He denied he issued instructions later to Dr. E. I. Cronk, of New Brunswick, to "open Mrs. Mill's body," while it was at an undertaker's room.

Don't Tell the Wife

BY WILLIAM B. COURTNEY

Copyright 1926 Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"DON'T TELL THE WIFE," starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. production of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Ranny Forbes, star polo player, and his beautiful wife, Joan, are temperamental mismatches. Joan wants a divorce; but Ranny confides to his chum, Clay, that he loves her. He secretly discovers that she loves another man, Abner Gratman, Stinson, lumber king with whom Ranny has pending a gigantic business deal, scoping fifty thousand on Ranny's team in the International Match. Victory will mean business good will. Ranny learns that the wager is with Abner Gratman! Abner, unobserved, maliciously cuts Ranny's stirrup strap. Distracted as he watches Joan flirt with Abner, Ranny neglects his playing. The rival captain is about to score. Ranny pursues—

If a pony had speed Ranny was the man to draw it out. Milkmaid had speed, and Ranny tugged it out of her head game little heart now. Breath-fast, like a gull scudding in the teeth of a stormy wind, Ranny and Milkmaid floated rather than raced down that field; through the six streaming players as though they had been standing stock still, and foot by foot drawing up on the thundering Argentine captain. Not an ounce of Ranny's weight was in the stirrups—knees and flanks glued him to Milkmaid's neck, and the holding touch of the ball of his foot in the stirrup was light as feather down.

Now the Argentine captain swung his mallet at the ball. Just a mechanical formality seemed necessary to register the goal. But Ranny frantically threw Milkmaid forward and stood up in his stirrups for a counter stroke.

The heavy strain of his foot was all that was needed to tear through the film of air, left by Abner's knife. The stirrup broke away, away Ranny's weight out of the saddle, off side.

Good horseman though Ranny was, sure footed though Milkmaid was, their charge had too much momentum for the disaster to be averted. As Ranny pitched loose from the saddle, his mallet became entangled in the little pony's forelegs. Milkmaid somersaulted, pivoted on her head while her legs thrashed wildly in air, then collapsed in a heap and lay very still.

And pinned beneath her lay Ranny, also very still.

CHAPTER III

Even as the goal watcher's flag went up and down, signalling a point for the Saffron, all attention went out of the minds of the Argentine Captain and his comrades, all chagrin was forgotten by the Americans, and all official austerity forsook Clay Varick. A common impulse dominated each and every man; get to Ranny! At breakneck gallop they anxiously converged upon him.

Simultaneously, another, succoring rush began from the back. The little bandy-legged Cockney lead that—his eyes wide with fear; and as much, in truth, upon the motionless horse as upon the equally motionless master.

On the sidelines, following an involuntary gasp of dismay, the good breeding of the spectators quickly asserted itself in a general repression of outward emotion. But the sympathy and concern were none the less intense for the silence.

Joan, springing from the car as she saw Ranny go down, paused on the running board—on tiptoe, the better to see; a rigid, inscrutable statue. Only Abner, closest to her, could note the delicate breath-thin quiver of her nostrils and lips, the cloud behind her amber eyes. And jealousy contributed in no small measure to his perception.

"Oh, he's all right," muttered Abner, a blue flame behind his affection. "Just a tumble. They happen in every game."

Joan said nothing—in fact, gave no sign of even having heard Abner. She grew more tense, in fact. For now the dismounted poloists were extricating Ranny from beneath Milkmaid's ruined bulk of beauty and muscle.

At Monroe City, Mo., the parents of a soldier hero erected a tomb over his grave and placed a gold star in the marble. The "meanest thief in the world" has chiseled every grain of the dust away. There are times when the English language becomes entirely inadequate to express one's opinion of another.

It doesn't take long now to get civic propositions acted upon in Albany-Decatur. This is the kind of spirit that wins. Albany-Decatur Daily. The smaller cities and more important towns of the state are increasingly alert and active in the matter of civic progress. They are putting forth efforts to secure manufacturing enterprises and are supporting all movements for the upbuilding of their communities. Results are already evident.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

SURELY THE TWIN CITIES WILL ANSWER THIS PLEA FOR AID.

Self-satisfied citizens of Albany-Decatur, still having that "over-stuffed" feeling as a result of their Thanksgiving feasts may have been jarred somewhat by the story in Friday's issue of The Daily, asking for a wheel chair to make one suffering heart happy.

It is too late now for her to share the general Thanksgiving pleasures with the remainder of the local residents, but it is not too late for her wish for a wheel-chair from Santa to be fulfilled. Surely the Twin Cities will not fail to answer this pitiful plea for aid.

Contributions may be made to the Community House organization and the address of the invalid will be gladly furnished to Old Santa that he may open the doors of another world to this poor shut-in.

CONSCIENTIOUS OFFICIALS.

A conspicuous example of legislators serving well their constituency is cited by the Albany-Decatur Daily, which editorially commends Morgan county's representatives, Messrs. John Patterson and P. E. Burleson, for their efforts in sounding out public sentiment with a view to framing a satisfactory road law. "These two legislators," says the Daily, "having already been elected, had they sought such a course could have, with ease, sidestepped the road problem as being more of a county problem than a state one."

In the case of Morgan county's representatives service and duty to their constituents evidently outweigh other considerations. This makes for efficiency. If public servants as a whole would devote the same thought and energy to the discharge of their official duties they display in their campaigns to secure office, the problems of government would be easier of solution.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

TWIN CITIES DECIDE NOT TO WAIT ON MUSCLE SHOALS ACTION.

The Albany-Decatur Daily does not take a very hopeful view of possible action by Congress on the Muscle Shoals question. Disposition of the great Shoals project promises to again be the cause of congressional squabbles, and if any definite action is taken it will come in the nature of a pleasant surprise.

The Albany-Decatur Daily says the Twin Cities have decided to wait no longer on Muscle Shoals, "but to forge ahead in civic expansion regardless of what Congress does or does not do with the great Alabama project. If Congress acts unfavorably, our speed will be that much faster."—Anniston Star.

There is no reason why the Tri-Cities should not do just as much along this line as the Twin Cities. There is no question about their ability for the Tri-Cities have been showing up of late to a good standard of progress and possibly after all we can make the same boast.—Tri-Cities Daily.

THE BIG PARADE BOOKED FOR EARLY SHOWING AT THE PRINCESS.

It isn't often that The Daily would utilize its editorial columns for increasing attendance at a moving picture performance. Yet, such is its belief in the reports it has received of "The Big Parade" that it will make an exception in this case and urge its readers to attend the forthcoming showing of the picture at the Princess theater.

"The Big Parade" is not, as its name might indicate, a comedy, although, like life, it has, no doubt, its share of humor. Primarily, however, it is a story of the world war and no film, showing that great conflict true to the pattern, could by anything but tragic.

The film is said to be the best thing yet done to perpetuate for all time the scenes of battle and the hardships suffered by the heroic American troops who sailed overseas. It is well for Americans who stayed at home to get a glimpse of these hardships. It may arouse in their hearts a keener appreciation of the wearers of the khaki and the sacrifices they made. It may arouse in their hearts a keener love for peace and make them more anxious to avoid a future conflict.

SPORTSMEN SHOULD EXERCISE THE GREATEST DEGREE OF CARE.

With "open seasons" already here for hunting of many varieties of game and the "seasons" about to open for others, sportsmen should consider anew the necessity for the exercising of the utmost care while in the fields.

The following list of "don'ts" were prepared by the state game and fish department of Florida and are equally as adapted to Alabama:

"No one can estimate the value of a human life. Be careful in handling a gun.

"Do not attempt to cross fences or climb banks with a loaded gun in hand.

"Do not attempt to carry loaded guns in automobiles, buggies or other vehicles. Unload before getting in.

"Do not carry a loaded gun in a boat that is in transit. Load after reaching the shooting ground.

"Do not shoot at a moving object unless you know what it is. Men have shot their friends and sometimes strangers in taking a chance on this.

"Be careful of the direction in which you shoot. Do not forget the distance that your load will travel.

"Be sure that your safety is on when you are in the field. It is but a matter of a moment to throw it off.

"Do not drag a loaded gun toward you.

"Do not strike at your dog with the gun barrel. You may get the load in either instance. It has happened to others.

"Be careful not to shoot or injure stock.

"Do not forget that the farmer provides food for much of the game and helps to protect it.

"Be sure to get permission to hunt on a man's premises before entering.

"Do not fail to close the gates through which you pass. Care in this matter often keeps the gate open to sportsmen.

"Do not fail to put out fires, whether they be camp fires, matches or cigar stubs. Fires destroy property and game.

"Sportsman is a gentleman. He won't forget to call by the farm house to express his appreciation for the courtesy extended him in permission given for hunting on private grounds. This is often best expressed by a division of the bag.

"Do not fail to observe the bag limit fixed by law. There is a wonderful supply of game for the coming season, and the game department is going to protect it. The co-operation of sportsmen is sought in this matter and will be appreciated."

A TRAIN OF THOUGHTS for the Sabbath and Other Days

BY J. E. BLAIR

Thanksgiving speakers in the churches of Birmingham this year voiced very practical ideas. In a word such men as Dr. Arthur J. Moore, Dr. James E. Dillard, Dr. Trevor Mordecai and Dr. J. A. Bryan, said that "You have got to do better."

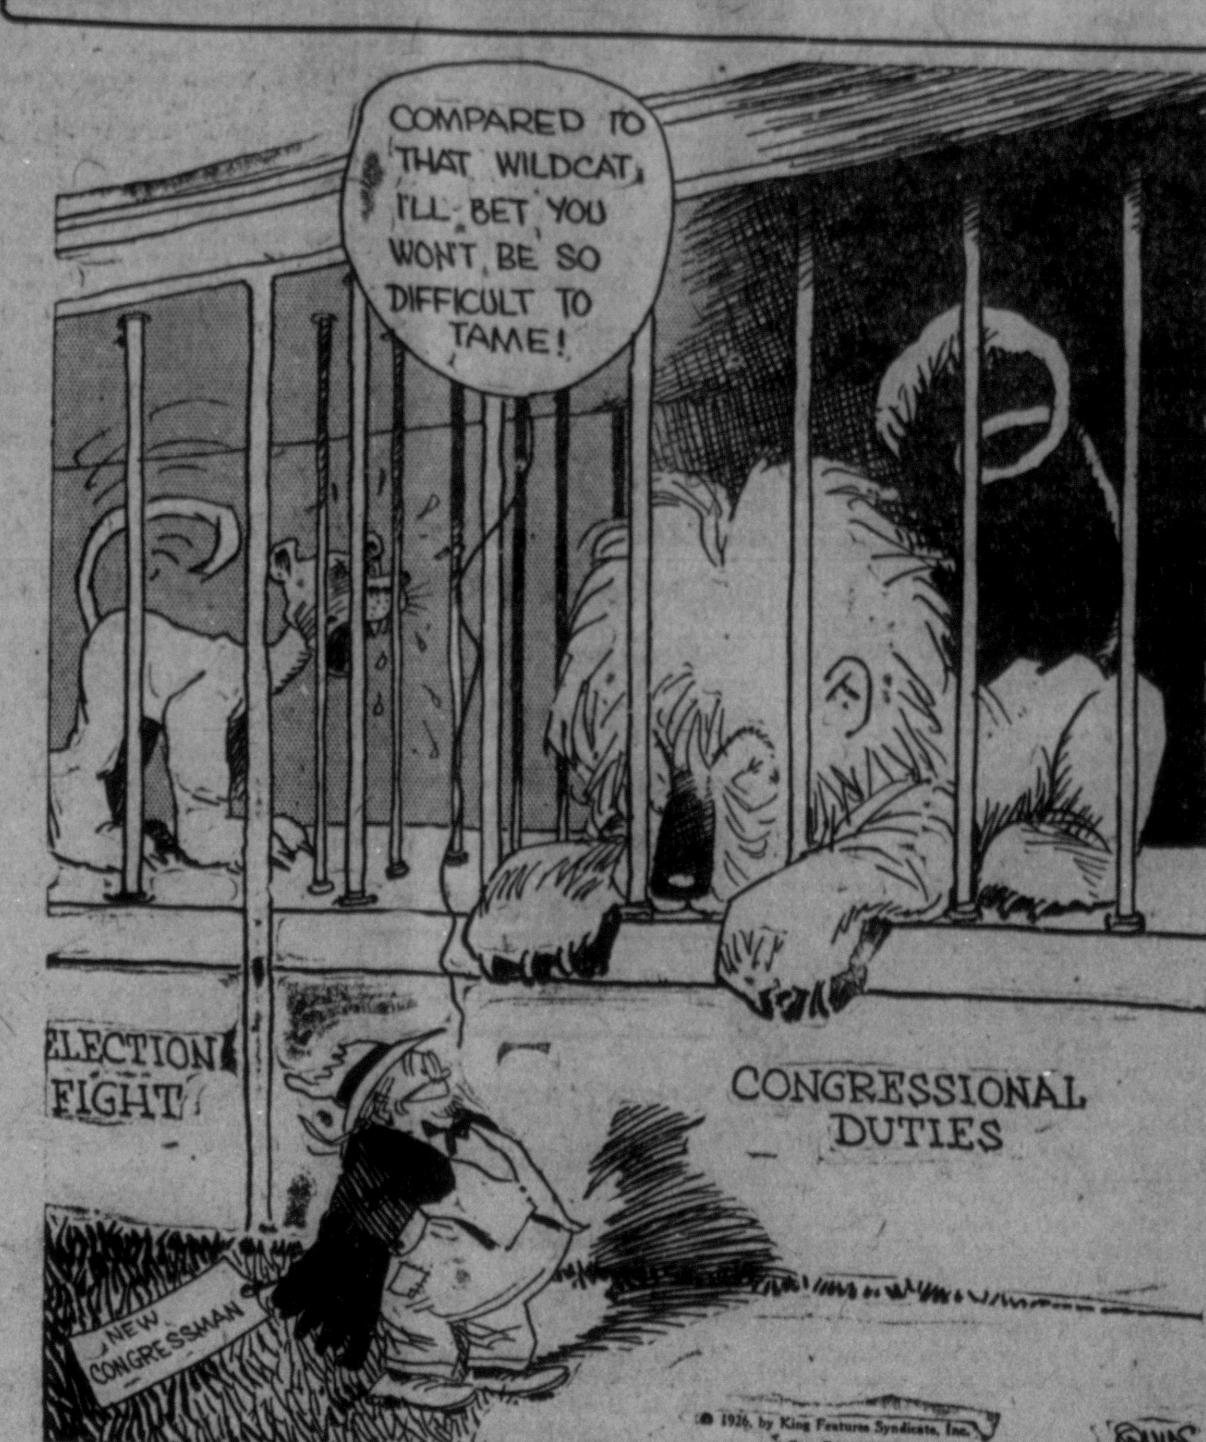

Dr. Bryan recited the history of the growth of Birmingham since 1889, "when I saw the little mules that pulled the street cars" to the time when there are 185 miles of street railroad track, and when Birmingham's industrial positions is second to no other city of similar size. Dr. Bryan said those who "only hold out their hands for blessings are no good" or words to that effect. Dr. Mordecai who although a young man used to dig coal in the mines for a living and who developed highly his God given talents for learning and eloquence took as his Thanksgiving text: "Ye follow Me, not for the miracles, but because you did eat of the loaves and were filled," and lift things up for those who are ungrateful! He said, "We have to start some where, to be thankful, so why not start at the loaves and fishes, but for God's sake don't stop there." Dr. Mordecai said, "We quibble, fiddle around, and do next to nothing for the advancement of God's kingdom, and are too lazy to even THINK what gratitude means." This speaker, however, complimented the rather generous attitude of those who have means and commended those who love the Master for His own worth rather than for what He can do. Dr. James E. Dillard, said in effect, "The world is a good place, despite its imperfections, but it can be made a better place; we can help God, therefore let us get busy."

Dr. Arthur J. Moore, who succeeds the lamented George R. Stuart as pastor of the First Methodist church, just told his congregation in so many words if this generation did not do better, "we stand to lose every thing gained for 1900 years." He said, "There are men who would pluck 'old glory' from its place and make of our flag a dirty rag." Those who know say that the facts that Oscar W. Underwood came out for "Al" Smith for president, and that Governor Brandon was put on the defensive regarding liquor drinking the day previous to Thanksgiving Day, had something to do with the "hard-boiled" character of the "Thanks" messages. Clarence Trust Wilson, who was here Thanksgiving, the man who speaks for all northern Methodists on prohibition said, "Alfred E. Smith's strength with the slum element of New York is his weakness for the things that will destroy this republic. Dr. Wilson said that "the nigger in the woodpile" takes the blame, but that Governor Brandon is still on the defensive."

At least there is cause for Thankfulness that Santa Claus is not so far away as he once was.

There may have been sadder words than these about some president in the past, but John A. Stewart tells a pitiful story in the following reference to the late President Harding: "President Harding's heart was broken by the ingratitude of his friends and he died a martyr to that friendship."

WEEK-END VACATIONS GIVE FRESH TONE

Even a Single Day Spent Amid Strange Faces Has a Wonderful Effect on the Mind and Body.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

THERE can be no doubt that an occasional vacation is a good thing for everybody. To go out into new scenes and to find how people live in other communities is informative and interesting. When you go away and see how other people live you are usually glad to go home and get into your own comfortable slippers and eat your own delicious foods. But, when you sit down you have something to talk about.

The reason why two people get on each other's nerves is because they have no new thoughts to discuss. Pleasurable emotions stimulate the heart and cause that organ to beat more powerfully and send a cleansed stream to every part of the body. It isn't necessary to go to Europe. You can have these changes in your own vicinity. This is equal to foreign travel and will prove quite as stimulating.

You may think it strange that I talk about vacations at a "wrong time" of the year. There should be no wrong time of year when it comes to this subject. I am not talking about a great long trip some where. What I have in mind is a week-end visit to some nearby place.

If you have the money you can go to Atlantic City or Niagara Falls, to the nearest big city, or to some winter resort for a day or two. If you have very little money you can at least devote a whole day to something entirely different from your usual life.

What I have in mind is to stimulate you to do some unusual thing. It is the treadmill of existence—the daily monotony, the tedious doing over and over of affairs of your home or business—this is the deadly thing.

It is too bad for a couple to have to talk "shop" all the time. The affairs of the household and of the business have grown threadbare through daily handling.

In order to be well and happy there must be a human interest in every life. Two people can love each other dearly, but at the same time they can get on each other's nerves. This is why I want you to take an occasional vacation, or have a picnic or diversion of some sort. It is good for your health to go on a little spree of this sort.

be benefitted by such a step, and for this reason we have been watching with great interest the development of a move to get at the bottom of the thing.

Bodies of population which grow up side by side, with their several governments, institutions and traditions, are more likely to fly asunder than to merge, more likely to remain on amicable terms with each other, until it is found eventually that economic facts force them to consolidate, after precious years of progress have been wasted.

There is nothing which is uncorridial in the relationships of the three cities here. Each has its local pride, of course. But if it should be found that it would be altogether to the advantage of all for the people who live here together on the Coosa river to pool their interests, we believe that they would gladly do so. These interests, from every standpoint, seem identical.

It is to be hoped that the new committee may meet with every encouragement. Whether a survey of all the conditions results in final decision of the people to consolidate their cities or not, certain it is that the efforts which are being made to get at the bottom of this question which has been hanging fire for years will be appreciated by the public at large.—Gadsden Times.

Other Crops In Abundance Are Raised in 1926 By Alabama Farmers

A survey of agricultural conditions throughout Alabama reveals certain features that will go far to compensate the farmers for their improvident production of cotton. P. O. Davis, of the Auburn extension service, discovers that there has been a substantial production of other crops. With the single exception of peanuts there have been increases in nearly every yield, says The Birmingham News. There is an abundance of corn, Irish and sweet potatoes, sugar cane syrup and the similar crops, such as dried peas and beans. The larders and smokehouses are well supplied. Despite the deplorable and hurtful declines in cotton, the very plethora of the staple, will go far to offset their effect. Picking continues, and will continue straight through till Christmas. Some of the later pickings are of low grade, of course, and will fetch lower prices on the market, but those farmers who are energetic enough to go ahead with the gathering are assured that they can draw money on it, and that in the long run every pound of it will be needed in industry.

The natural inference is that the Alabama farmers will not suffer so greatly as was at first expected. After three years of rather good times when the principal cash crop was profitable in the making, the present emergency simply means that the farmer will mark time. He will be no manner of means be precipitated into bankruptcy. If he follows the rule of reason and temperance in cotton planting in the Spring, and diligently proceeds to plant the crops that can be used at home, he need have nothing to fear of 1927.—Huntsville Times.

Today:

By ARTHUR BRISBANE. (Copyright, 1926, by The Star Co., For Albany-Decatur Daily).

In offering Mr. Brisbane's daily editorials The Daily does not necessarily concur with his opinions, but offers them as the sentiments of the highest paid editorial writer in this country.

LLOYD GEORGE is worried about everything. Mussolini's treatment of Germans in the Tyrol, annexed to Italy, will cause war between Germany and Italy and "embroil all Europe." Russia is the great problem, and more intelligent than our bankers that bought Kerensky's Russian bonds, Lloyd George says the danger will come "not from Bolshevism, but from the irresistible return to Russia of Czarist imperialism."

ALL nations should forgive all their debts, England included, says Lloyd George, but he fears the recent United States election will prevent that. He does not mention the fact that everybody owes us, whereas we owe nobody.

What Lloyd George calls "a general jubilee, which would wipe out all international debts," simply means Europe saying to Uncle Sam, "You free us of debt and you pay the piper."

FRANK A. SIMMONS, says, "America is looked upon in Europe as the common peril." Europe feels that we got all the profit out of the war, Europe got nothing. We are to live rich and happy. Europe is to worry. Europe ought to remember that Europe started the war, as she will start others, probably.

Men and nations that choose to cut each other's throats have no right to hate, though they may envy a nation or individual that stays outside the throat-cutting. America got in part way, but not all the way, luckily.

GEORGE STERLING, California poet, who committed suicide at 57, wrote "I am grown weary of permitted things," and adds, "Rather by dusk for lillith would I wait, etc."

THE trouble with this age is weariness of "permitted things," and the trouble is not confined to poets. The pig is weary of his pen, the cow of her pasture, the young man of his job, some young girls of decency and restraint. However, the "permitted things" will continue to rule.

The pig is better off in his pen, the cow in her pasture, the man at his job, the girl with chaperon and the 57-year-old poet as far away as possible from, "lillith by dusk."

THE Rev. Dr. Rainsford tells a gathering of his former parishioners, "We are gradually giving up belief in a God who relieved himself by reversing His own natural order and working miracles." That means gradually giving up religion of which hell, miracles and reversing natural laws are an essential part. Raising the dead, casting out devils and similar achievements are necessary to impress the primitive mind seeking relief from thought.

WITH belief in old religion gone, we still should have the "ermos" on the mount, the teachings of Confucius, the solemn meditation of Marcus Aurelius and the brave philosophy of Epictetus. They supply enough religion for anybody, you might say.

But a working religion, profitable to those that manage it, permanent in its grip on the masses, requires many miracles and a hell with hot fire. "No hell, no fear, no faith." That's the rule with 90 per cent.

MADAME ALEXANDRIA KOLLANTAL, Bolshevik lady ambassador to Mexico, forbidden to enter United States territory lest she should undermine our political and other morals, tells us about marriage. "It is," says she, "a big strain on romance."

Madame Kollantal speaks English, French, Italian, German, Norwegian, as well as Russian. In any of those languages she will tell you that woman has not enough freedom. She is opposed to "free love," but says, "The new woman does not deny her female nature. She does not dodge life, nor reject earthly joys."

THAT'S putting it mildly. Madame Kollantal believes in a "school of love," and that school "requires great delicacy of soul, attentive tenderness and psychological wakefulness."

"The woman of today, says this Russian lady, 'feels that marriage is a shackle, even if it is an informal marriage without external bonds.'"

Madame new woman makes more demands on her lover than did the old-fashioned woman. She can forgive any slight, even infidelity, which the old-fashioned woman could not forgive, but she forgives no slight to her spiritual ego.

It will be hard for the new man to keep up with this new woman. This Madame Kollantal will learn from British, French, German, Italian and Norwegian history, that while marriage may be "a big strain on romance," as the wife, grown pudgy and the husband grows dull, absence of marriage laws creates a greater strain.

Men have been caught, married, signed up, tied down, because the process is absolutely necessary to civilization. The strange thing is that modern women, not men should attack the institution that with all its imperfections is the only hope of women and children.

INDIGESTION
North Carolina Lady Says She Had An Awful Time With Indigestion, Till She Took Black-Draught.
Pilot Mountain, N. C.—“For several years I suffered with a bad case of chronic indigestion,” says Mrs. Sam C. Imman, of this place. “I had bad spells with my stomach. At times I had severe pains in my right side. My stomach would get upset and I would have an awful time. It seemed like everything I ate disagreed with me. I was in pretty bad shape.”
“My husband had been using Theford's Black-Draught for some time for indigestion. He had spells of it too, so he suggested that I try Black-Draught. I took some from his box, just to see if it would help me, and I found it was the very thing for my trouble. It did me a great deal of good. My condition was brought on by a chronic case of constipation, and by getting relief from this, I found my general health was much better.”
“We keep Black-Draught in the house all the time. Whenever I find I need it, I take several doses and thus avert a bad spell of indigestion. It is a splendid medicine and I am glad to say so.”

DISTRICT BOARD TO DECIDE GAME

Superintendents In favor Of City Title Right

Decision of the district board of the Alabama High school athletic association will determine play between Albany and Decatur High schools this year. This announcement was made today by school authorities who are pleased at the prospects for a game which will decide a city football crown.

Provided the district board acquiesces to the pleas of local coaches and officials the high school rampus will likely be staged at Maiana Park next Friday afternoon. Coaches Kirby of Decatur and Alford of Albany are going ahead with their plans for the tilt, anticipating that the district board will hand in a favorable decision.

Should the two teams come together it is likely that the largest crowd of the year would be in attendance, the followers of both schools have attended every scrimmage between the two this year and a test of strength would bring an even greater number of spectators.

Superintendents Bencon of Decatur and Greenhill of Albany are understood to favor the play of the teams.

Army-Navy; Carnegie-Notre Dame; Alabama Gets Lion Share In Praise

Gone but not forgotten is written today on the headstone covering Old King Football, now pulling the last foot in the 1926/season grave. Army-Navy; Carnegie Tech-Notre Dame and the season comes to an end, with the exception of the clash of Alabama and Stanford on New Year's Day at Pasadena.

Today the two major grid conflicts are centers of more than ordinary interest. With 18 degrees above weather the Army Mule attempts to add another victory to the 14th. The Navy is trying to make a 13th win and draw nearer to the Army record. In the years of play there have been only two tie games.

Odds would seem to favor the Navy today and in such event the Army will win. Every champion has fallen this year but the University of Alabama and brother that's going to happen on New Year's Day unless a silver lining can be added to the clouds now gathering. The Army and Navy have two of the finest backfields in the nation, they have a pair of excellent lines, they are on even terms, only the Navy has not lost and Knute Rockne spoiled a perfect Army record.

The Navy's score should be 13, the Army 7.

Turn for the moment to the Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech tilt, that game that arouses Pennsylvania to an unusual pitch each year. Notre Dame should come through the game to a fair margin win, though Carnegie has an excellent team and will fight. Notre Dame should score around 24 points, Carnegie Tech 7.

There isn't much to say about Alabama. The Tide is under the cover for the first time since last August, but though the Tide is not playing you may rest assured that Sir Wallace Wade, that powerful mind of the Crimson host, will soon have his charges back on the field, preparing for another jaunt to the Rose Bowl.

No finer words of praise could have been uttered from the Crimson Tide than by David J. Walsh, sports editor of the International News service. Walsh had to say following the Alabama-Georgia game: "Let the exhorters prate of the Navy's all round excellence, the running game of Stanford and Lafayette, Brown's eleven, Joe McGinty's and the put-and-take varsity combination of Notre Dame, but give me that Alabama team that beat Georgia yesterday 33-6 and I'll ask nothing further in this life. All in all one of the few great teams of the year, it might

110,000 WITNESS ARMY-NAVY GAME

Weather Is Ideal For The Annual Grid Classic

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—(AP)—A real winter day, with a temperature 18 degrees above zero but with a bright sun breaking the morning haze greeted the annual Army-Navy game today.

The cold, aided by Lake Michigan's chilly breezes, followed rain and snow yesterday, but only traces of snow and a few icy spots were left in the stadium.

The sunshine promised to mitigate gooseflesh as approximately 110,000 Americans prepared for the game.

Many of the early patrons, evidently possessors of tickets carried heavy blankets and extra coats. For several days department stores had been featuring blanket sales.

Negro Is Fined On Prohi Charge

A negro woman, giving the name of Maxie McQuary, was fined $75 and costs by Mayor Malone in Albany police court this morning on a plea of guilty of violation of the prohibition law. The arrest followed a raid by Chief of Police Hendrix, and Patrolmen McCall, Nance and Tipton on a residence on East Pond street. Half a dozen bottles of liquor were seized. All of the liquor, except that required for evidence, was poured into the sink at the city hall, following the trial. The raid occurred about eight o'clock this morning.

The negro woman testified she bought the liquor "from a man," whose name she did not know, last night.

even be the greatest."

That from an outsider, Alabama fans should not feel badly over the demise of the football season, the Crimson is champion again, the Crimson host has proved abilities beyond all expectation and the Stanford trip may not be such a bugaboo after all. More power to the Tide, to Winslett, to Caldwell, to Pearce, Barnes and the whole team.

FINANCE RESULT DECLARED GOOD

Albany Mentor Is Pleased With The Public Support

While Albany High school did not come out in front in the matter of costs for football this year, Coach Alford, mentor, stated today that he was highly appreciative of the support given to the team by the public.

"Though our year was not the best in the world, we made some headway financially, better than other years," said Coach Alford. "I want the public to know that the school officials and students appreciate the support given the team."

Coach Alford had little to say regarding the Albany and Decatur conflict now pending, owing to the fact that he must await the decision of the district board. However, he is in favor of the game and is of the opinion that the battle of the two teams will be one of the season's best.
